MAJ WITH FRIENDS

October 27th dawned as a cold and rainy Sunday, but inside the JCC 48 players came together to compete in the 4th annual Mah Jongg Tournament hosted by Temple EmanuEl Women's Club and Temple Beth El's Sisterhood. With their Mah Jongg necklaces around their neck, smiles on their faces and ooh's and ahh's uttered at a magnificent Mah Jongg cake, they played.

The winners were:

- 1st Hinda Crewell
- 2nd Lydia Edwards
- 3rd Phyllis Rosenthal
- 4th Nancy Nojaim
- 5th Lisa Schapiro

Part of the proceeds will be shared with Thea Bowman House, a non-profit organization helping the most vulnerable children and their families unlock their full potential.

The success of this event would not have been possible without our first time sponsors; Norman Neslin of Digestive Disease Medicine, Theresa Flemma of Baird Private Wealth Management, Jeff Gornick, Heidi Foote of Freeman and Foote Jewelers and Colleen Thieme of Thieme Fitness Works. In addition, a great breakfast and end of tournament prizes was enjoyed by all due to the generosity of our business and Temple friends including: Slice Pizzeria, Goldmine Jewelers, Pumpnickels Deli, Lennon's W.B. Wilcox Jewelers, The Grapevine, Raspberries Café, Freeman & Foote Jewelers, Tasha's Techniques, Soho Nails and Spa, Symeon's Greek Restaurant, Thieme Fitness, Effleurage Day Spa, Caren Summers, DeStefano Art, Debbie's Café, Cloud Shine Design, Whirled Peas, Sculpture Space, Price Chopper South Utica, BJ's, Full of Beans, Rosa's Trattoria, Willie's Bagel Café, Zeina's Café and Catering, Kat Berkovich and Sophie Doran. Finally a special thanks, for their time and patience, to Rita Davan, Cecily Eidelhoch, Vivian Berkowitz, Caren Summers and Ellie Neslin.

Mark your calendars, learn to play and join us for our 5th Annual Tournament on Sunday, October 18, 2020.

Temple Beth El Cantor Message

I recently got a message on my answering machine looking for my mother. This was surprising for a couple of reasons: firstly, my mother has been dead for five years. Secondly, my mother never lived with us or, to my knowledge, used our phone number. Then, a couple of hours later, I got another message from someone else in a different state also looking for my mother.

As it turned out, it was a matter related to some family burial plots and a long-lost relative. My siblings and I had thought that all of our mother's affairs were settled, but apparently not.

It brought to mind a verse from the Torah that we say many times during the High Holidays: The hidden things belong to Adonai our God, and that which is revealed to us and our children..." (Deuteronomy 29:28). There is much that is knowable, but is not yet known. This applies to all of humanity, but certainly to us as individuals. We all expect that there are wonderful things (and perhaps some not-so-wonderful) that have yet to be discovered. Whether cures for diseases or solutions to vexing issues, we look forward to news of those who have teased answers out of meticulous research and inspired insight. The Torah does not mean to say that we will never know what we don't know, but that not all things are knowable at any given time.

The notion that the first step on the road to wisdom is to admit that you don't know is attributed to Socrates. It seems that the more we learn, the more we become aware of just how much we have yet to know. It is commonplace for scientists, in gathering data from experiments, whether on Earth or in space, to conclude that the results raise more questions than they answer.

There is also the question of how much we have the capacity to learn as individuals. While our brains' capacity to learn is not infinite, it is substantial; some estimates suggest that we top out at about a petabyte of capacity (that's 1,000 terabytes). We are also limited by the number of hours a day we are awake (and can therefore pay attention to things) as well as the length of our lives. Additionally, the brain's sensitivity to different kinds of information changes during our lifetimes (language acquisition, for example).

Knowledge, however, is a waystation and not the final destination. Knowledge leads to understanding, and understanding to wisdom. We strive to understand the world and our part in it.

As there are different kinds of knowledge, there are different tools for acquiring it. The scientific method is a useful and time-tested tool for securing knowledge of the physical world. But what of morals and ethics? The scientific method is ill-equipped to determine whether something is right or wrong. For these sorts of knowledge we employ a different tool.

We who are Jewish benefit from having a system for attaining this category of knowledge that is far more venerable than the scientific method. The irony is that it hides in plain sight. That is to say, it is only hidden to the extent that we choose not to look for it. The avenues to this knowledge are many and varied. All that is asked of us is to set out on that journey.

Temple Beth El President's Message

I would like to use my message to wrap up the weekend of the Centennial Celebration. It was a phenomenal weekend that was nearly perfect with praying and partying. The many hours of planning by many finally came to fruition.

The committee, Ernie Berkowitz, Julie Cain, Judy Fisher, Roz Fisher, Myrna Lobenstein, Ann Nathan, Ann and Norm Siegel, Mundy Shapiro and Michael Silverman started a year ago to formulate the 100th anniversary.

For the beautiful floral arrangements, thank you to our anonymous donors.

I appreciate Cantor Socolof coordinating and arranging all the services for the weekend. Thank you to Rabbi Gerstein, Rabbi van Leeuwen and Elliot Rabin for taking part to assist Kal.

With her eye for perfection, a heartfelt thanks to Julie for her many grueling hours of toiling over and creating the program book with cover design by Lois Silverman. It was happily received with many compliments. Keeping track of all the accounting for the many bills and contributions continues to pile on her desk. Thank you!

To Mundy, thank you for fielding the numerous phone calls from near and far inquiring about the weekend. Also for planning and executing the Kiddush Luncheon with the caterer. It was delicious and a time to schmooze and catch up with old friends.

Ann Siegel and Ann Nathan executed the Oneg beautifully. Many hours were spent planning, schlepping, shopping and setting up with the assistance of Tanya, Sophia and Mikhail Samoshuk.

Our 400+ invitations were compiled and sent out with Rae Rosenfeld's assistance and her expertise in creating the poster boards for the photo displays executed by Roz Fisher and her assistants Judy Fisher and Dave Lowitz. Thank you!

Katrena Berkovich created the beautiful centerpieces on Saturday night. Her amazing touch gave the social hall a classy, celebratory ambience.

The talented musicians of Blue Star added musical charm to the enchanted evening.

Patrick from O'Connor's Feast and Festivities catered the weekend with Joanie, Catherine and crew. Many hours were spent in the kitchen for the celebration. Their advice and help along the way was greatly appreciated.

Rita, thank you for bouncing off ideas and your advice to Julie while she laid out the program book.

With three functions so close together and limited space, we put Avlim to the test. He passed the test with flying colors! Thank you, Avlim for all your hard work and patience.

Whether it was with your attendance, contributions, ads or stories, to everyone in the Jewish community and beyond, YOU made the weekend!

Thank you,
Marsha

Temple Beth El Executive Director's Message

It is a pleasure for me to write this article for the bulletin after the wonderful observance of our Temple Beth El Centennial. I don't think over the last 23 years did I ever think I would be part of such an occasion.

So many members came from near and far to celebrate with us – CA, CT, FL, IL, MA, MD, MN, NY, OH, PA and VA and everyone had a wonderful time. The services were the same as every other Friday night and Saturday but these seemed to be special, the Havdallah was so beautifully sung by Cantor and Rabbi Jason Van Leeuwen, who came from California. Cantor Socolof was at his best, we thank him for his kind words to the committee members.

The beautiful music that played all evening, by Blue Star was perfection, we could talk and visit, but the lovely music was able to put a smile on one and all. The shiny, sparkling delicate decorations just added to the beauty of the whole evening thanks to Katrena Berkovich. It was such a pleasure to listen to Rabbi Stanley Gerstein deliver a sermon with so many memories of the past to be reminded of and to continue with the many options for the future of Temple Beth El. If you think about it, we didn't get to be 100 by not hearing and listening to those before us.

Thank you to our caterer Feast and Festivities by O'Connors for such a delicious repast, and the incredibly hard work done by Avlim, our amazing maintenance man who set up tables, took down tables for 3 meals from Friday nights Oneg Shabbat to a complete lunch after Shabbat services to Saturday night dinner, and then put everything away again with no detail overlooked.

The two Ann's, Nathan and Siegel made the Oneg one special evening for everyone after services Friday night. It was joyous. I really enjoyed making the Shabbat lunch look as nice as it tasted.

It was very special to have so many out of towners, and we were so happy to welcome our Temple Emanu-El friends. We do appreciate their support.

Now, here is an inside detail, the whole weekend would not have been so special without the efforts of Marsha Silverman who took on so many of the details and especially the running film titled "Now and Then", so many people watched it over and over and Julie Cain who almost single handedly produced our beautiful commemorative book. Roz Fisher and Judy Finer were responsible for the very interesting group of pictures hung on the boards around the Temple. The photos were enjoyed by everyone. There is nothing like old pictures to bring back so many memories. Rae and Steve Rosenfeld were involved in very many of the details to make the whole weekend run as beautifully as it did, and they even were the smiling couple at the door welcoming everyone.

A year of planning was enjoyed by over 125 people each day and was worth all the time and effort. We loved every moment of it, another glittering star to add to Temple Beth El's 100 years. Let's keep adding blessings to all our families and friends. How blessed we are to have so many very talented caring people to make our 100th year celebration so very special, thanks to everyone and...

...Thanks for the Memories.

Mundy

Temple Beth El Men's Club 91st Political Breakfast

The 91st Temple Beth El Political Breakfast was another huge success. The feedback was all positive! The room was packed, the food was delicious and our politicians kept us informed on what they have done or what we can look for in the future.

I want to thank Co-chairman Ernie Berkowitz for all his support and input to help the morning go so well.

No event can come off without loads of help from the volunteers. I truly appreciate all the assistance from Mundy and Stan Shapiro, Marsha and Sara Silverman, Rae Rosenfeld, Mark Smith, Dave Goldbas, David Lowitz, Ann Nathan, Ann Siegel, Mark Kall, Bob Hammond, Sid Blatt, Mikheal and Stanislav Karyagina, Rita Davan, Julie Cain and Avlim Tricic. Kudos also go to Eric Smith for donating the eggs.
